He noted that the past 12 months brought forth the retirement announcement of Brent R. Benjamin and the appointment of the new Barbara B. Taylor Director, Min Jung Kim. Mr. Lowenhaupt added that after learning of Mr. Benjamin’s retirement, a listening group was formed to start the search process to decide “What did St. Louis want in a new director”. He discussed how the commission appointed a director’s search committee that included a diverse group of people, and the results of the listening project developed a profile for the new director’s position based on what the community felt it needed and the information could be found on the website. Mr. Lowenhaupt concluded by discussing the reaccreditation, the Art Museum being recognized as one of the greatest in America, Brent Benjamin’s 22 years of stewardship to the Museum, and the announcement of the new Barbara B. Taylor Director, Min Jung Kim.

closure. The Museum currently operates under the advisory plan of the City of St. Louis Health Department with 60% occupancy for the public and 66% occupancy for private events. She stated that employees are expected to fully return on site July 6, 2021. She continued with the overview of the 2021 operating budget, Endowment, and Capital Budget. Ms. Schmidt highlighted the impacts of COVID-19 including reduced attendance, sponsorships, memberships, and no on-site programs. She noted that the tax revenue from the District remains the largest revenue at 64% of the Museum’s $36.9 million projected operating budget. Ms. Schmidt concluded with an overview of the 2021 capital projects budget and an update on cyber security initiatives. Ms. Schmidt paused for questions. No discussion ensued.

Brent Benjamin, Barbara B. Taylor director, presented information about the Museum’s attendance, revised mission statement, strategic plan, and the impact of COVID-19. He added that the strategic plan was extended for 2 years because of his upcoming retirement. Mr. Benjamin highlighted the components of the strategic plan; art, experience, community, financial stability/institutional sustainability. He discussed the diversity of the staff and introduced the new Chief Diversity Officer, Renee Brummell Franklin.

Renee Brummell Franklin, Chief Diversity Officer, presented information about the adoption of the board study group report, ongoing sustainable Diversity, Equity and Inclusion culture shift in the Museum, and the Romare Bearden Graduate Museum Fellowship. She discussed the DAMLI (Diversity Art Museum Leadership Initiative) grant that is designed to increase the demographic cultural diversity of America's art museums staff. Ms. Franklin concluded with highlighting the Advancing Change, the future of Museum leadership virtual summit on diversity, that is available on the Museum’s website.
